THE CHANGING EARTH

A female-led survival thriller about family, freedom, and the end of the world we built.

THE SERIES

Nine years after the Great Quake, wife and mother Erika Moore — the Lone Survivor of Sacramento — works inside a Las Vegas refugee camp to keep her youngest son off the sterilization table. When the state moves to erase her family, the woman they turned into a legend will have to decide whether loyalty to the system, or to blood, will cost her everything.

WHY IT CONVERTS TO TELEVISION

This is not a disaster movie stretched to eight episodes. It is an 11-novel closed saga with a female heroine, a family that drives every season, and a long-running human antagonist. The Earth keeps changing. The war for what is left of America keeps escalating. The story is already built for years of television.

THE HEROINE

Erika Moore is not a chosen one. She is a mother, a wife, and a fighter — the Lone Survivor — who becomes a symbol because she will not abandon her people.

THE FAMILY

Vince, Dexter, Daniel, and found-daughter Star are why she fights. Every season asks whether love can survive the end of the world.

THE DEVASTATION

The Great Quake is only the first blow. Floods, famine, volcanic dark, and a militarized America keep raising the stakes.

THE THRILLER

Camps. Sterilization. A mentor's betrayal. Bounty hunter TJ Swenson. Escape, pursuit, and war — action with a human cost.

THE PEOPLE WHO CARRY THE WAR

ERIKA MOORE	The Lone Survivor of Sacramento. Mother. Martial artist. Fierce love with a body count — the soul of the series.
VINCE MOORE	Husband and builder. The quiet strength that keeps a family standing when the country will not.
THE CHILDREN	Dexter, already taken by the system. Daniel, the clock they are racing. Star, the daughter Erika pulled from the ruins.
SGT. BENNET	Mentor. Patriot. The man who may have to destroy the Moores in order to save them.
TJ SWENSON	Bounty hunter. Trafficker. Leader of the Blackshirts. Charm, a whip, and a long game to own Erika.
